

Dr. Adnan Salihbegović, the then Professor of Faculty for Electrical Engineering in Sarajevo, today already Emeritus, on the 3-er of July 1992 was neatly kicked out to the street by Presidential Security staff of already war-stricken Bosnia and Herzegovina. It happened almost momentarily as this European Beg* began his unexpected political performance of sending from his spacious Bosnian chest to a European Lord, and through him to the whole world, the following message:

"THANK YOU, LORD CARRINGTON, FOR THE CANTONISATION. BOSNIA & HERCEGOVINA IS NOT BANTUSTAN, AND WILL NEVER BE!"

PostScript:

Eh, my Professor, son of my noble parents, what a splendid utopia! Lord Carrington's dream on Bantu Bosnia nevertheless, and cannot be more effectively, is accomplished. God's promise to him came true just like in the case of Palestine! You, and our brother-martyr, and we all, living and dead and half-dead, can only keep dreaming our own and your honorable revolt.

Salihbegović is an old Bosnian noble family name comprised of the Islamic/Arabic name Sâlih and Old Persian title beg (for Lord and Master. Later Turkish adaptation - Bey).

At the beginning of 20. century, this original family name was converted through Serbian (i.e. Austrian Empire) administration to more Slavic name as getting suffix ović, meaning "descended from".

Mr. Carrington should have known it before coming to Bosnia to talk to Lord Izetbeg/ović & others.
